Description

A 19th Century Original Buttoned Red Leather and Oak Frame Captains or Library Desk Chair. Just back from gentle conservation with nourished and repaired leather seat, newly fitted and period correct front castors, newly fitted hessian to the underside and even wax polish to the oak frame. A superb English mid to late 19th century, buttoned leather with barley twist oak supports, captains chair, library reading or desk chair with country house proportions and original, timeworn leather upholstery. A handsome reading or library chair presented with its original ox blood red, sang de boeuf button studded leather which displays an elegant aged appearance whilst intact, a fine grade of leather which has aged gracefully. An enchanting country house chair with a wide and deep seat, supported upon barley twist, oak supports. We are offering this splendid reading chair in its elegant and gently conserved condition, it does show age and wear which we consider its authenticity and character. The chair is both structurally and aesthetically excellent. Dimensions Height 76cm Width 66cm Depth 64cm A spectacular chair of both function and form, a striking country house aesthe...
