Description

A graceful Edwardian satinwood bow-front display cabinet, finely hand-painted and beautifully proportioned. The arched top is crowned with a carved scallop shell motif, resting above a moulded cornice that adds architectural presence. The upper section features three glazed doors, opening to reveal a shelved interior ideal for showcasing porcelain, glassware, or treasured objects. Below, the base is fitted with three paneled cupboard door, each exquisitely painted with charming classical vignettes of putti (cherubic figures), rendered in soft tones typical of the period. Delicate painted details, warm satinwood grain, and elegant form make this an ideal statement piece for refined interiors – perfect for drawing rooms, dining spaces, or hallways.
