Description

Antique George III Kneehole Desk A very rare Georgian kneehole desk. We are delighted to bring to you a very rare 18th Century Georgian (George III) Kneehole desk of small proportions in Mahogany around C1790. This desk has a figured Mahogany top above its quite unusual pull out writing surface, complete with a full grain blue leather blind tooled writing skiver which is in great condition. The desk has 8 deep drawers including a full width top drawer with a secret drawer below in the kneehole frieze. To the back of the kneehole is a lovely little cupboard, complete with a shelf inside, its original lock and escutcheon. The cupboard door and all drawer locks are all working Georgian warded locks, complete with original keys. The top drawer and 2 drawers on the right pedestal are locked with a separate key (these locks have been replaced with original Georgian locks at some point). The drawers have cock-beaded edges (none missing), are dovetail constructed and all smoothly operate, with no considerable drawer wear. Each drawer is complete with its lightly polished brass plate dropper handles (the handles have been replaced at some point) and keyhole escutcheons with rose...
