Description

A late 17th-century English Oak chest of drawers, circa 1680, from the Charles II period. This exceptionally well-constructed sturdy chest showcases durability of oak, complemented by beautiful walnut panels. The chest features four long drawers with correct drop handles, cushion drawer fronts, thick paneled sides, and drawer linings. It sits on its original block feet, and the back retains its original boards, ensuring the drawers run smoothly. The piece is in good antique condition, with expected signs of age and use. Dimensions 92.5cm height x 99cm width x 57cm depth.
