Description

A very charming and original Queen Anne period solid oak supper table of small and elegant proportions. The two drop leaves and original drawer with engraved and cast brass handle over finely ringed and bulb and baluster turned legs conjoined by very sturdy stretchers. . The table sits down well, it has developed a slight smile to the three top boards which only centuries of expansion and contraction of such old oak can produce. It remains level and flat enough for use and the slight wobble to the top is most attractive and shows off the patina. . The colour of the oak is excellent, the richness of the patination is delightful and the table retains all of its original timbers and also its original iron hinges and hardware. The small completely original oak lined drawer with its tiny hand cast brass drop handle and embossed backplate is exquisite. . Despite its small size this is a useable and useful table, very heavy indeed for its size, sits firm and level and is the perfect supper table for two or four. With the leaves down the table will fit into the smallest space and yet will always catch the eye for its colour, character and great age. . A few small and professiona...
