Description

Edwardian inlaid display cabinet This Edwardian inlaid display cabinet was made circa 1900. The cabinet is of a serpentine form. The Edwardian inlaid display cabinet splits into 2 parts, this allows for ease of transport to and around your home. The top section has serpentine and concave shaped glass panels, this allows you to view your precious items. The top has a pediment that is a swan-neck shape, that is profusely inlaid. The base has double doors that open to reveal the interior with a shelf. The doors and side panels are again profusely inlaid with fine panels of inlay. There is a platform with a line inlay under that join the swept legs. This Edwardian inlaid display cabinet will not only be a wonderful cabinet to display your precious items but also an item of Edwardian furniture that will enhance your home. 183cms high 72ins 81cms wide 32ins 38cms deep 15ins Measurements are as accurate as possible Delivery UK mainland FREE Other destinations please contact us, and we will get a quote.
