Description

This is a fine example of hand sewn silk embroidery dating from the late 19th Century. The embroidery is extremely well executed with incredible detail and was likely part of a garment belonging to a Chinese dignitary. The embroidery depicts butterflies and flowers in fine silk threads sewn onto a silk background in a beautiful shade of blue. This is presented in an ivory mount set within a neat gilt antique frame which suits the piece well. Including the frame this measures 72 cms by 19 cms and it is in excellent condition. UK insured packing and delivery is £15
