Description

A late 19th century (circa 1880) mahogany tripod table of small proportions and of exceptional quality in the George II Chippendale style with superb original patina. This table consists of a solid mahogany tilt top with pie-crust edge with original patina, the rotating birdcage mechanism allowing the top to revolve. This leads down to a finely carved base with ring turned and acanthus carved baluster column with spiral twist decoration with egg and dart carved collar all supported on a tripod base, the carved cabriole legs with acanthus carved decoration to the knees and terminating with ball and claw feet. Although this table is a 19th century example it could easily be mistaken for a period 18th century table due to the wonderful patination. This table is in very good condition for age, is of stable construction and can go straight into a home, the small size making it a very versatile and useful piece. Size: Height: 23.25" / 59cm (top down) 32.25" / 82cm (top tilted) Width: 18" / 45.75cm Depth: 18" / 45.75cm
