Description

A rare pair of Arts and Crafts pedestal stands from the aesthetic period. Lovely black lacquer finish with gilt accents. This pair of aesthetic stands are typical of the period. Commonly believed that the designer and the art critic Ruskin was the instigator in this history of furniture with his championing of the move away from industrialization and the mechanization of society. Circa 1885. Great for displaying decorative pieces such as vases and urns. Offered in great shape, ready for home use right away.
