Description

This highly decorative Anglo-Indian side table, crafted from solid Padouk, dates back to the Anglo-Indian export era and showcases exquisite craftsmanship. The deeply carved top features intricate floral and foliage motifs, along with beautifully sculpted elephants, surrounding a flat hexagonal centre. The table is supported by four finely carved elephant heads, complete with bone tusks and eyes, while their trunks elegantly extend downward to form the legs. In solid condition, with only surface markings reflecting its age and use, this stylish and elegant piece remains both functional and visually striking. A timeless addition that will bring character and sophistication to any space for years to come.
