Description

We are delighted to offer this stunning antique Victorian star/flower shaped pendant necklace made c.1900. This pendant is made from 18ct gold features a very playful and vibrant combination of pearls and red enamel to accent each point/petal. In spite of its modest size, the quality and craftsmanship is very impressive with the pearls tapering and meticulously set and the enamel section having guilloché underneath. Distinctly Victorian in design with a combination of playfulness yet elegance, this pendant is a wonderful and novel choice to wear with a variety of outfits. The red enamel is of a lovely hue and striking, wonderfully contrasting the surrounding pearls and buttery yellow gold setting. The pendant is suspended from a freely moving bale and as such comes to life upon wearing as it moves and reflects light in different angles, presenting different hues of red enamel depending on the setting and lighting. A lovely piece of endearing and colourful Victorian jewellery, ideal for antique lovers and those who wish to wear a distinguished choice and bound to be a conversation starter. The pendant is unmarked as is common with articles of this period and as such we...
