Description

This is a stunning late Victorian pendant stylized as a flower head adorned with glowing iridescent opals and sparkly diamonds. Made in 1880-1890 in England the pendant is crafted in silver (tested) and 15ct gold (tested). The opals display a magnificent play of colour with iridescent hues of blue, green, orangey-pink, and violet. Small old rose cut diamonds add some liveliness and twinkle to the pendant and compliment the opals beautifully. Can be worn on a chain, but also looks gorgeous on a silk or velvet ribbon! Dimensions: length including the bail – 37 mm, diameter of the pendant – 25 mm, principal opal cabochon – 4.5 mm diameter, 6 opal cabochons – 3.5 mm diameter, totalling up to just over 1ct, diamond total up to 0.42ct (approximate calculated weight in setting), total weight of the pendant – 6.94 grams. Condition: excellent condition, all stones appear to be original and well preserved.
