Description

A beautifully crafted Regency period jewellery box dating to circa 1820, showcasing a rich combination of rosewood and satinwood veneers. The lid features a striking oval satinwood inlay at the centre, framed by an intricate geometric border, characteristic of the refined craftsmanship of the era. This elegant piece stands proudly on four decorative brass lion paw feet, with matching brass side handles, adding both functionality and grandeur. The box retains its original keyhole and exhibits a gently domed profile, enhancing its classical appeal. The interior is fitted with a removable, lined tray, thoughtfully divided to accommodate various types of jewellery, making it both practical and timeless. Whether used as a luxurious storage piece or a stunning decorative item, this Regency jewellery box offers a perfect blend of historical charm and everyday elegance.
