Description

This Good Quality Regency Inlaid Mahogany Pembroke Work Table is both extremely versatile along with being highly decorative. Standing on elegant finely turned legs with ring decoration, finishing with the original brass cup castors. The two free running drawers, veneered to their fronts with wonderful flame mahogany, with the bottom one being double height and the top having movable dividers, offers good storage. The shoulders of the legs have a contrasting Rosewood panel for decoration, along with an abundance of line inlay to add further interest. The top and leaves have a Rosewood cross banding to them, along with a further inlaid line to the edges. There is a good usable surface area when the flaps are raised. A charming, useful little piece that would work so well in many areas of the home. The table can be viewed all round having matching faux drawers to the rear. The table is presented in excellent antique condition with minor age-related wear consistent with its history. Fully restored and ready for use. Supplied with fully working key. Circa Regency.
