Description

Early 19thC, Regency Open Arm Dry Beech and Elm Country Chair C1820, Dish Seat. A superbly stylish, early 19th century open arm country carver chair of elegant design with a pronounced dish shape or saddle seat and established dry surface and great colour. The regency design, tbc circa 1820-1830 English country chair is both well constructed and remains in excellent structural condition, showing handsome design features with turned supports and tapering legs, shaped open arms and solid saddle seat, a very nice example from all sides. A versatile English country house chair for an entrance hall, farmhouse kitchen dayroom, study or dressing room, landing etc..., an interior design chair of considerable decorative appeal with excellent colour for a classic or contemporary space.
