Description

A superb example of 18th-century craftsmanship, this early George III dumb waiter is crafted from rich, highly figured Cuban mahogany. Featuring three graduated circular tiers supported by a central baluster column, this piece shows the elegance and functionality of classic Georgian design. Set on a well-balanced tripod base with pad feet, this antique three-tier dumb waiter is ideal for use as a serving table, display stand, or occasional piece in both traditional and contemporary interiors. The patina of the Cuban mahogany adds warmth and character, reflecting its quality and age. This piece would look amazing in a dining room, hallway, or sitting room. circa 1760
