Description

A fine and rare example of early 19th-century English porcelain by Barr, Flight & Barr Worcester. Crafted in fine porcelain, the piece displays a scalloped rim and is decorated in the famed "vermiculé" gilt pattern, a design reminiscent of the finest Sèvres influences. At its center is a gold-framed medallion with a lifelike depiction of a butterfly. The dish is marked on the reverse with an impressed "BFB" mark and dates to the 1804–1813 period. Size: 22 x 22 cm (sides), 27 x 27 cm across widest points, height 4.5 cm. Condition: Excellent antique condition, with no damage or restoration and only minimal wear to gold.
