Description

We are delighted to offer this stunning antique Victorian diamond brooch made c.1900. The brooch is made from solid 14ct gold and in spectacular Victorian fashion. Featuring a heart intertwined with a crescent design, profusely decorated with fine old cut diamond of tapering sizes on a silver faced mount, this brooch most certainly presents a stunning and distinguished in design. Celestial jewellery was increasingly vogue during the Victorian era as renewed fascination of stars & heavens carried into fashion and goldsmithing. The crescent moon was a symbol of the Greek God Selene, representing of feminine empowerment and change just like the phases of the moon. The heart being self-explanatory, represents a romantic and endearing aspect. In addition to symbolism, such designs also offer the perfect opportunity to display high level goldsmithing, with intricate and fine gold/silver mounts, curves and angles to ensure the diamonds dazzle in their finest light. Owing to its silver front, the diamonds and its mount have a uniform chic appearance; lively and stylish yet not too ostentatious. This brooch would make for a distinguished and discerning choice to wear with a va...
