Description

An exquisite Art Deco single strand cultured pearl necklace, dating from the 1920s and showcasing timeless elegance with a sparkling diamond clasp. Each of the 56 lustrous cultured pearls is individually hand-knotted. They exhibit a beautiful creamy ivory tone with a rich, deep lustre—classic hallmarks of quality from this era. The clasp is crafted in 9ct white gold, set with a central diamond surrounded by eight smaller stones in a striking circular design. It fastens securely with a push clasp and includes a safety chain for added reassurance. Recently professionally restrung, this necklace wears beautifully and offers both glamour and grace. Length: 48 cm (19") Pearls: 56 cultured pearls, graduating from approx. 9.5mm to 6mm Clasp: 14mm wide with one central 2mm diamond, encircled by eight approx. 1.5mm diamonds Gold: Clasp tests as 9ct white gold Fastening: Push clasp with safety chain Weight: 32 grams Date: Art Deco period, circa 1920 Condition: Excellent condition – pearls are smooth, well-matched, and round Presentation: Supplied in the box illustrated Our Reference: 22252 A striking piece of antique jewellery—perfect for a collector or to wear with t...
