Description

This superb 19th-century mahogany Davenport desk is a refined example of English craftsmanship, made in the manner of Gillows—one of the most renowned furniture makers of the Georgian and Regency periods. Featuring a sliding front panel and a tooled leather writing surface, this antique Davenport combines elegance with function. The rich flame mahogany veneers, original turned bun feet, and high-quality brass gallery accentuate its timeless appeal. Multiple drawers on one side and concealed compartments beneath the hinged writing slope offer ample storage, making it as practical as it is decorative.
