Description

This elegant pair of Georgian mahogany shield back chairs, dating circa 1820, showcases the refined craftsmanship typical of early 19th-century English furniture. The chairs feature intricately carved shield backs with classical urn motifs, a hallmark of Georgian design. Constructed from solid mahogany, they offer both durability and timeless appeal. Each chair is upholstered in original-style green leather, accentuated with decorative brass studs, adding a sophisticated contrast to the warm wood tones. The gently curved backs and padded seats provide comfort as well as style, making these chairs ideal for dining rooms, studies, or antique-themed interiors.
