Description

This exquisite George III mahogany wardrobe, hailing from the Channel Islands around 1800, showcases the craftsmanship of its era. The elegantly moulded cornice is adorned with intricately applied pendants, adding a touch of sophistication to the piece. Below, a pair of beaded doors, beautifully inset with delicate boxwood roundels, enhances its aesthetic appeal. Supported by sturdy bracket feet, this wardrobe not only serves as a functional storage unit but also as a stunning decorative element in any room. Its classic design and meticulous details reflect the timeless elegance characteristic of the George III period, making it a valuable addition to any antique collection.
