Description

A Late Georgian Rosewood Writing Table Attributed to Gillows of Lancaster & London. Constructed in rosewood, the tapered and turned baluster ends supported by a block form base with a lobed platform and a oversized running pearl edging, above scrolled feet of foliate design, with sunken brass castors; the top having radiused corners, with a lobed edge, and in the frieze, two mahogany lined drawers, between a beaded moulding. Currently in unrestored, original condition, please contact us for further information. Circa 1825. This design for a table appears on many occasions between 1822 and 1830 in the Gillows Sketchbooks, held in the City of Westminster archives. Currently in unrestored, original condition, please contact us for further information.
