Description

Bring timeless sophistication and refined craftsmanship into your home with this exquisite Edwardian-era mahogany chair-back settee. Handcrafted around 1900, it melds graceful lines, rich wood tones, and subtle inlay details to create a truly remarkable conversation piece. This settee is a fine example of Edwardian period design, featuring delicate shell carvings on the crest rail, a gently sweeping back, and slender cabriole legs. The overall silhouette is light and airy, reflecting the era's preference for comfort without sacrificing elegance. Crafted from solid mahogany, the frame displays a deep, lustrous patina that has mellowed beautifully over more than a century. The warm, reddish-brown grain is especially striking along the chair-back splats and the gracefully curved arms, making it a standout addition to any interior. Each of the chair-back splats is adorned with a carved shell motif and features subtle marquetry inlays—floral scrolls in contrasting veneers that add refinement without overpowering the design. The generously sized seat is upholstered in a neutral ivory-beige fabric, offering a clean, classic look that complements the rich mahogany. The gently cus...
