Description

A rare and beautifully preserved medical display cabinet by renowned London makers Mayer & Meltzer, dating to around 1910s. Designed for use in a pharmacy or clinical setting, the cabinet is constructed from what appears to be either copper or bronze, left in its original finish and richly patinated with age. It features its original glass throughout, including side panels, shelving, and front door, with a red velvet-lined base, ideal for displaying delicate instruments, apothecary items, or collectibles. The cabinet bears the Mayer & Meltzer, London maker's stamp, a mark of quality in early 20th-century medical design.
