Description

An antique mahogany tilt-top dining table, British, c.1780. The rectangular top features rounded corners and a reeded edge, supported by a single turned pedestal column resting on four splayed legs with brass-capped castors. The original tilt mechanism allows the top to be raised vertically for space-saving storage. Crafted in solid mahogany with a rich patina, this late 18th-century table reflects the refined craftsmanship typical of the period.
