Description

A fine quality William IV mahogany Pembroke table dating from circa 1830. This elegant antique side table features a single drawer with drop ring handles and classic drop leaves supported by folding brackets, offering flexible surface space. The table stands on slender, finely turned legs and castors—a hallmark of early 19th-century design. The compact size and versatile design make it ideal as a side table, lamp table, or occasional writing desk in both period and modern interiors. circa 1830 Width with leaves up 104cm
