Description

A 19th Century French iron bistro table by Arras. It has a circular top on three elegant legs with lions paw feet and a small central shelf. Maker's details embossed on lower support. It is a very well made and good quality piece, as you would expect from Arras. It has had numerous coats of paint over its lifetime and the current white finish is probably fairly contemporary. It suits the piece but could of course be stripped back if desired. It is in good condition for its age and is strong and sturdy with no major damages. There are of course signs of age and use but nothing detrimental. It has been gently cleaned and is ready for use.
