Description

An exquisite vintage ring crafted in the distinctive and much-admired Art Deco style, dating from the 1960s. This piece is a wonderful example of timeless elegance and exceptional craftsmanship. At the heart of the design is a line of three captivating old cut diamonds, securely set in platinum collets. These are encircled by a striking geometric border, adorned with shimmering rose cut diamonds and richly coloured, fancy cut sapphires in a deep Kashmir blue. The central old brilliant cut diamond measures approximately 3.5mm, with the flanking stones at around 3mm each. Tiny accent diamonds, approximately 1mm, complete the setting, offering a total diamond weight of around 0.60 carats (Colour: H, Clarity: SI1). The platinum setting features intricate millegrain detailing, typical of the Art Deco era, and the ring's shoulders are delicately embellished with additional diamonds for added sparkle. The head of the ring measures 18.8mm x 10.9mm and sits 4mm proud of the shank, ensuring it catches the light beautifully from every angle. This ring is wonderfully comfortable on the finger, offering a secure yet flattering fit, ideal for daily wear or as a very special engage...
