Description

This elegant set of six antique Regency dining chairs showcases classic early 19th-century English craftsmanship. Crafted from ebonised beech wood, each chair features refined sabre legs and a beautifully carved rope-back design. The backs are adorned with intricate ormolu lyre motifs, adding a touch of neoclassical sophistication. The drop-in seats are upholstered in a neutral-toned fabric, making them easy to re-cover if needed to suit any interior. With a comfortable seat height of 45cm, these chairs are ideal for both formal dining and stylish everyday use. Dating from circa 1820, this rare Regency set combines period charm with timeless appeal, making it a standout addition to any antique furniture collection or traditional dining room.
