Description

This is an antique reception hall cabinet. An English, mahogany glazed wall cupboard in Aesthetic Movement taste, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1890. Exceptionally bold and beautifully crafted, this distinguished cabinet makes a refined addition to a formal reception area, hallway, or drawing room. Superb Victorian hall cupboard, with decorative appeal and functional interior. Select mahogany stocks with fine grain interest and rich caramel hues. Fascia elevated with ebonised and gilt detailing, accentuating the cabinet's architectural form. Glazed door inset with a clear bevelled glass plate, offering a bright viewing pane. Dressed with a turned bone drop handle and oval brass escutcheon — key present. Opens to reveal a two-shelf interior, each removable or height adjustable for display versatility. Attractive trefoil arcading crowns the upper gallery, evoking Aesthetic style elegance. Lower apron embellished with a dogtooth motif, flanked by a pair of useful key pegs. Designed for wall mounting upon brass loops, the cabinet provides immediate presence and utility. A fine showcase of the Aesthetic Movement's dedication to form, finish and refined detail, this anti...
