Description

This Edwardian mahogany pedestal desk is a fine example of early 20th-century craftsmanship, combining timeless elegance with practical design. It features an original green tooled leather writing surface, framed by a finely molded mahogany edge that enhances both its appearance and durability. The desk is fitted with nine graduated drawers—three along the top and six in the pedestals—each accented with cockbeaded edges and finished with unusually ornate brass swing handles, which lend a distinctive and refined touch. A key highlight is the fully panelled back, making this desk suitable as a free-standing piece, ideal for placement in the center of a room. The desk rests on solid plinth bases, offering both structural stability and classical symmetry. Key Features:
