Description

Ludwigsburg Porcelain Pair of Figures, Musketeer and Lady, c. 1758–1793 A rare and authentic pair of 18th-century porcelain figures, produced by the famous Ludwigsburg manufactory during the original ducal period, circa 1758–1793. The pair comprises a musketeer and a lady in Rococo attire, finely modelled and painted in polychrome enamels, with gilt accents and expressive facial detailing. The lady wears a floral gown with garnet bodice, puffed sleeves, and a feathered hat, enriched with lace borders and fine enamel. The musketeer is dressed in a sash, striped breeches, and feathered hat, with sword in hand, captured in a dynamic pose. Each figure is marked with the underglaze blue crowned “CC” monogram, the official Ludwigsburg factory mark used during the reign of Duke Carl Eugen of Württemberg. The sculptural quality is of outstanding standard, and the modelling is consistent with the work of Johann Wilhelm Götz, whose pieces are preserved in public museum collections, including the Victoria and Albert Museum in London. ...
