Description

This exquisite pendant, dating to circa 1905, is a fine example of Edwardian craftsmanship. Hand crafted in rich 15ct gold, it features a classic floral drop design that is both elegant and timeless. At the centre sits a lovely deep blue sapphire, surrounded by a halo of delicate split seed pearls arranged in a circular gold frame. Suspended from a double knife-edge drop, a further pearl adds graceful movement and charm to the design. The pendant is finished with a decorative gold bale, making it ready to wear on your favourite chain. A truly feminine and refined piece, this antique pendant looks beautiful when worn and would make a perfect gift or heirloom item.
