Description

Early William Moorcroft Blue Ground Pottery Ceramic Vase A superb example of early William Moorcroft artistry, this exquisite ceramic vase showcases the master's unmistakable style and craftsmanship. Rendered in a deep cobalt blue ground, the vase is decorated with Moorcroft's signature floral motifs—each petal and leaf hand-painted with rich, saturated glazes that softly bleed into one another, creating a luminous, painterly effect. Dating from the early 20th century, this vase reflects the Art Nouveau influence that defined his earliest and most collectible pieces. The form is elegantly proportioned with a gently rounded body tapering to a narrow neck, creating a timeless silhouette. Features: Authentic early William Moorcroft vase Cobalt blue ground with hand-decorated flowers Classic Art Nouveau design Distinctive Moorcroft glaze with subtle tonal variation Signed to base A collector's piece of exceptional quality, perfect for connoisseurs of British art pottery, Art Nouveau design, or those looking to add a striking and historically significant work to their interior décor.
