Description

Beautiful, dark, patinated bronze, Jurojin, one of the seven lucky gods with his companion deer. Jurojin is often confused with Fukurokuju, they are believed to share the same body. This okimono is very well detailed with good patina and finish. His staff is detachable. The bronze base is 20cms (8 inches) diameter. Meiji period. Condition: Excellent. No scuffing or scratches. Will make a perfect focal point in a minimalist room or maybe the Managing Directors' office. To order now, please email taishofineart@gmail.com for banking details. We do not add to our prices to cover bank charges by Stripe or PayPal. Delivery, packing and Insurance is also free within UK. Usually 24 hour delivery.
