Description

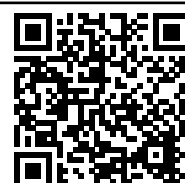

A truly beautiful antique diamond solitaire ring, crafted in 18 carat white gold and platinum, dating from the elegant Edwardian era. At its heart sits a superb old brilliant cut diamond, weighing approximately 0.80 carat. This diamond is of excellent quality – bright and lively – with the distinctive charm and fire that only antique hand-cut stones can offer. Graded G in colour and VS1 in clarity, it is a stone of both character and clarity. Adding to its grace, the centre diamond is flanked on each shoulder by three finely cut Swiss accent diamonds, giving the piece a refined and balanced silhouette. This is a ring of enduring quality and classic proportions – ideal as a distinctive and romantic engagement ring for someone who values antique craftsmanship and timeless style.
