Description

This is a pair of antique garden lions. An English, reconstituted stone recumbent ornamental outdoor lion, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. Evoking classical heraldry and timeless grandeur, this duo is equally at home flanking a garden path or a fireside hearth. Delightfully regal pair of recumbent lions, rich in character and historical presence. Cast from reconstituted stone, offering robust composition and substantial weight at 30kg (66 lb) each. Displaying superb detail, from the flowing mane to the proud, composed expression. Gracefully weathered from exposure, enhancing their authentic period appeal. Majestic heraldic pose, a nod to England's rich decorative and symbolic traditions. Finished in a natural stone hue, well-suited to both classic and contemporary outdoor settings. Ideal for entranceways, garden borders, courtyards or indoor fireside displays. Generously proportioned and confidently poised for impact and charm. A fine opportunity to acquire a superb pair of English garden lions, these antique sculptures bring gravitas and enduring charm to any outdoor or interior environment. Delivered ready to display.
