Description

Officer of the British Army personal purchase of this fine engraved bladed 1796 pattern sabre, the blade has become tarnished and the leather scabbard shows its age the stitching has decayed overtime, the blade would restore as no rust showing on this beautiful engraved blade, Famed for its use by Britain's Light Dragoons and Hussars during the Peninsular War and Waterloo, this sword was also supplied to the Prussian Cavalry in great numbers and even found favour in the USA. This design was suggested for British service by cavalry officer John Gaspard Le Marchant, who believed cavalry swords should be light and have a curved, slashing blade.
