Description

For sale, this excellent painting of H.M.S. Dauntless in action by maritime artist Don Wilson. A good example of his work. No foxing and quite a large example at 21" by 17" including the frame and glass. The actual size of the visible water colour is 15.25" by 10.75". Looks great on the wall, even in a today's modern house. Price £225.00 inclusive of shipping to within the UK. Note H.M.S. Dauntless 1917-1946 The Danae class mounted an extra 6 inch gun and a heavier torpedo armament, compared with their predecessors, the C-class cruiser. The class also had larger low revolution propellers for greater efficiency. Dauntless herself was completed with a large hangar under her bridge, which was eventually removed in 1920. On the outbreak of the Second World War, Dauntless was recommissioned and joined the 9th Cruiser Squadron with the South Atlantic Command. In December, the squadron, including Dauntless, was transferred to the China Station, and in March 1940 Dauntless operated as a unit of the British Malaya Force while in the Indian Ocean. She operated mainly off Batavia, keeping watch on German merchant ships in the Dutch East Indies harbours. On 15 June 1941 she collided w...
