

SA1153006

A Rare Japanese Okimono Meiji Period Carving of A Skull With a Feathered Bird Entwined By A Snake

Price

Sold

Item Reference: SA1153006

Date of manufacture: 19th Century

Dimensions

Height = 19 cm (7.5")

Description

A very well intricately carved Japanese okimono Meiji Period Bone/Antler of a Skull And Snake entwined and a feathered bird on the head, possibly a raven or crow. The skull is attached to a wooden plinth Carved in Bone or Antler showing a human skull surmounted by a snake and bird The vanities are a recurring subject in Japanese art. The craftsmanship is very fine, with a high level of detail in all components. Height:- 19cm approx Condition Good Having great patina Meiji Period (1868-1912) Late 19th Century

Seller Details

Sandbanks Antiques

Sandbanks Poole Dorset United Kingdom By appointment only in Poole or London.

Tel: 07889 139677

International Tel: +44 7889 139677

