Description

A truly elegant antique single-strand cultured pearl necklace, dating to circa 1920, featuring a remarkable floral clasp set with natural diamonds and a vivid Ceylon sapphire. This timeless piece comprises 99 hand-knotted cultured saltwater pearls, each with a beautiful ivory-cream hue and delicate pink-green overtones. Their lustre is superb, and they are impressively smooth and blemish-free. The 9ct gold clasp is adorned with a 5mm round Ceylon blue sapphire at the centre, surrounded by twenty-four old-cut diamonds arranged in a charming millegrain floral motif. The clasp is fitted with a safety chain for added security. This exceptional necklace comes with an AnchorCert gem certificate, confirming the pearls as cultured saltwater and the stones as natural sapphire and diamonds. Length: 50cm (20") Pearls: 99 cultured saltwater pearls, graduating from approx. 7.5mm to 3.2mm Clasp: 14mm floral setting, 9ct gold (tested), with a safety chain Sapphire: approx. 5mm Diamonds: 24 old cuts, 1mm–1.8mm, total estimated weight 0.50ct Weight: 16.5 grams Circa 1920 Excellent condition throughout Presented in the box illustrated AnchorCert certificate included (see photo...)
