Description

An antique early Victorian oak kitchen dresser, c.1830–1840, featuring a traditional two-part form with a pot-board base and plate rack top. The upper section has scalloped edging, shaped sides, and a central cupboard flanked by open shelves, while the base houses two drawers with brass swan-neck handles. Raised on cabriole front legs with pad feet, this dresser offers a classic farmhouse look, suited for display and storage in kitchen or dining settings.
