Description

A rare and elegant antique 19th-century demi-lune side table, crafted from fine satinwood and displaying exceptional quality throughout. This beautifully proportioned piece stands gracefully on three tapered legs, each fitted with small brass casters for ease of movement. The table's curved front and refined silhouette give it a timeless and sophisticated presence. Exquisitely inlaid with ebony, the detailing is subtle yet striking, highlighting the craftsmanship and attention to detail characteristic of the period. The satinwood grain and figuring are particularly stunning, with a warm golden tone that adds depth and richness to the piece. In great condition and full of charm, this is a highly desirable and uncommon example—ideal for hallways, drawing rooms, or any refined interior looking for a touch of classical elegance. A true collector's piece with both beauty and rarity.
