Description

This exceptional and rare William IV rosewood partners desk is a true statement piece of refined English craftsmanship, dating from the early 19th century. Presented in superb showroom condition and constructed in a beautiful rich rosewood. One side boasts a pair of cupboards, offering generous concealed storage, with 2 drawers above. The other side is equipped with 2 drawers along the top and a further 2 drawers on either pedestal, all pull smoothly with brass ring handles. Crowning the desk is a new hand-dyed green leather inset writing surface, bordered with an elegant gold tooling that complements the rich tones of the rosewood beautifully. This fine leather top has been hand dyed using traditional method to create a unique emerald green colour, and provides a smooth and durable surface. Adding to its visual grandeur is a finely gadrooned edge that runs along the perimeter of the base—a classic detail of the William IV period. The desk comes in one piece.
