Description

This is a superb example of an English made Art Deco display cabinet, dating to the 1930s and very popular at the time for displaying your best china usually displayed in what was known as the 'front room' which was mainly for show and used to guests and entertaining. This walnut cabinet is what we've chosen to call a "Keyhole" shape and still retains it's original makers label, from a city called Leeds which is in the northern part of England. Veneered in mid-tone walnut and features a generously sized interior display area for your collection with three integral glass shelves. The beautiful leaded glass to the doors sets this cabinet off perfectly. The interior lining to the back is black. The doors work very smoothly with the original key. All in top condition, having recently been professionally restored. This style of cabinet would not have been cheap in it's day and was considered a higher design example and so is prized today for enthusiasts who seek the better examples for their Deco themed or influenced rooms.
