Description

Joseph Farrington RA (1747–1821) – Antique Oil Painting ‘Palace of Patterdale’ A finely executed antique landscape oil painting, titled “Palace of Patterdale”, attributed to Joseph Farrington RA (1747–1821), a notable English topographical artist and member of the Royal Academy. This picturesque landscape captures the grandeur of the Lake District’s Patterdale valley—an area Farrington visited and painted extensively during the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Rendered with rich naturalistic detail and atmospheric perspective, this is a classic example of English Romantic landscape painting. Details: Artist: Joseph Farrington RA (1747–1821) Title: Palace of Patterdale Medium: Oil on canvas Frame: Decorative period-style frame Framed Dimensions: Approx. 48.5 x 69.5 cm Canvas Dimensions: Approx. 43.5 x 64.5 cm Condition: Very good antique condition – minor wear commensurate with age A beautiful and historically significant piece, perfect for collectors of British landscape art or enthusiasts of the Romantic era.
