Description

A late Victorian ebonised side table featuring a decorative mahogany top inlaid with a central lozenge motif and satinwood crossbanding. The shaped top sits above square tapering legs, joined by a curved cross-stretcher and terminating in simple spade feet. The base has been finished in black, offering contrast to the figured top and its geometric detailing. Likely English, circa 1880–1900, this table offers both refined craftsmanship and decorative appeal in a compact format.
