Description

This is a superb large antique George II revival carved eagle centre table in the manner of William Kent, early 20th Century in date. The table has a variegated rouge marble top with the apron and plinth carved with breaking waves and shell edging. Below the marble top there is a magnificent carved spread winged eagle, and the table is free standing, so the eagle can be viewed from each side and you can see that it is of the highest quality. It is raised on a decorative naturalistic plinth base. There is no mistaking the unique quality and elaborate design, which is certain to make it a talking point in your home and a fine embellishment to your reception room.
