Description

This is an antique celebration chest. An Indian, teak and brass trunk, ideal as an occasional coffee table, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. Handsome Anglo-Indian trunk with fine craftsmanship and striking colour. Quality teak stocks display rich russet hues and fine grain interest. Robust lid and fascia accentuated with decorative brass strapping throughout. Dressed with a brass lock escutcheon to fascia — key absent. Lid opens smoothly to reveal a superbly appointed interior. Fitted with multiple compartments and removable trays, ideal for versatile storage. Lid interior features an additional gallery section for smaller keepsakes. Fascia hosts a deeply carved fruiting vine frieze, adding ornate detail. Dressed to the sides with brass drop handles for ease of movement. Raised upon a quartet of short bracket feet, lending balance and elevation. Gently time-worn patina throughout, adding to its appealing Victorian character. A highly appealing example of late Victorian Anglo-Indian craftsmanship, this antique teak celebration chest would make a distinctive coffee table or storage trunk, ideal for the refined home. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for use.
